Amma Birth Companions

E-Commerce & Digital Marketing Intern

ABOUT US

Amma Birth Companions is a Glasgow charity that provides vital services to ensure women and birthing people from migrant backgrounds and other underserved groups are supported during pregnancy, childbirth, and early parenthood. Our services include birth and postnatal companionship, peer support, and education. Through research and advocacy, we also tackle structural and health inequalities, informed by the lived experiences of the individuals we support.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is open to 2nd- to 5th-year undergraduates from either the College of Arts & Humanities or College of Social Sciences.

THE ROLE

This internship will support us in enhancing the visibility and effectiveness of our online shop, a vital source of income that supports our charitable work. The project will focus on optimising product presentation, improving digital marketing efforts, and streamlining shop operations.

Key objectives include:

- Capturing high-quality images and videos of our products
- Editing and uploading product visuals to create an engaging online shopping experience
- Updating product descriptions and optimising listings for clarity and appeal
- Developing digital marketing campaigns to promote the shop and increase sales
- Conducting market research to identify trends and potential areas for improvement
- Assisting with website updates and optimisation to enhance user experience
- Exploring partnerships or collaborations that could help promote the shop

Boomerang Woodworking CIC

Communications and Engagement Intern

ABOUT US

Boomerang is a community-driven wood workshop in Maryhill providing a space for people to learn and share skills in sustainable woodwork. Our journey began 15 years ago as a mental health and recycling project, and that focus remains today—we're committed to bringing the benefits of woodwork to the NW Glasgow community and environment through reclaiming wood and furniture from the waste stream, making things for local community organisations and residents and sharing these skills and knowledge through workshops and activities.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is open to 3rd- to 5th-year undergraduates from any college.

THE ROLE

Funding for this opportunity is being provided by the Glasgow Riverside Innovation District \(GRID\).

The intern will help us showcase our workshops, activities, and products through engaging content, ensuring our community impact is effectively communicated. We are at the start of our digital journey developing our website, newsletter, brand package and online shop but are looking for someone to take us forward and continue the work we've started. We know the value of social media and having an online presence for reaching our participants, supporters, customers and community, but have limited time and knowledge to excel at this. We are looking to learn from a student and to give someone an insight into the running of a non-profit. We can offer someone the flexibility to try out ideas and explore what works, we have many branches to our work including sales, mental health + wellbeing, recycling + sustainability and are looking for someone interested in sharing our ideas!

Citizens Theatre

Participate - Creative Intern

ABOUT US

The Citizen's Theatre is a historic producing theatre based in Glasgow's Gorbals. In 2025, we will reopen our doors to the people of Glasgow following a multi-year radical, renovation and expansion of our building, marking the most significant investment in the theatre's infrastructure in a generation. At the heart of our work is Participate, the theatre's creative learning and community engagement department, which delivers innovative, inclusive arts programmes for people of all backgrounds, particularly those facing barriers to participation. The Participate department prioritises co-creation, ensuring participants shape the work they engage in.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is open to 3rd- to 5th-year undergraduates and PGT students from the College of Arts & Humanities.

Student
 Opportunities

THE ROLE

Join us at a pivotal moment in the Citizens Theatre's journey as we prepare to re-open our doors with a bold and exciting Homecoming Festival this August. As an intern, you'll play an active role in the planning and delivery of this celebratory project, which will feature a vibrant mix of workshops, exhibitions, and live animations both inside the newly reopened building and throughout our outdoor spaces. This is more than just a festival—it's our big return and a chance to make a powerful first impression on new audiences and participants. You'll be contributing to something that has a lasting impact on how our community re-engages with the Citizens Theatre.

This internship offers hands-on experience in event planning, creative programming, and community engagement, all within the context of a high-profile arts re-launch. You'll gain insight into the challenges of producing a multi-strand festival, including managing timelines and working within the capacity of a busy team navigating several major productions and programme launches.

If you're passionate about the arts, thrive in a collaborative environment, and want to be part of something meaningful, this internship offers a unique opportunity to help shape a landmark moment in Glasgow's cultural landscape.

Early Years Scotland

Research & Impact Intern: Early Childhood Development & Policy

ABOUT US

Early Years Scotland is Scotland's leading specialist charity dedicated to ensuring every child from pre-birth to age five has the best start in life. We work directly with children, families, and professionals to remove barriers to learning and wellbeing at the earliest stages, helping children thrive and reach their full potential. Our programmes support families in Scotland's most deprived communities, where children face increased risks of poverty and adversity. We also provide professional learning for Early Learning and Childcare practitioners and advocate for improvements in early years policy and practice.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is being funded by the Postgraduate Researcher Hub, and therefore is only open to PGR students in the College of Social Sciences.

THE ROLE

This is a unique opportunity for a passionate and driven research intern to contribute to real-world policy impact. As a Research & Impact Intern, you will evaluate and evidence the effectiveness of two key EYS programmes:

- Off to a Good Start (OTAGS) – A long-standing initiative promoting physical activity, healthy habits, and early movement-based learning for children aged 0–5.
- Creating Caring Connections (CCC) – A new pilot programme supporting neurodiverse children and their families through sensory-based approaches.

Your research will directly influence EYS's policy engagement, funding applications, and strategic priorities—ensuring these programmes continue making a difference in communities across Scotland.

Family Mediation West

Case Studies Intern

ABOUT US

Family Mediation West has been delivering a range of family conciliation services since formation in 1987. FMW is affiliated to Relationships Scotland nationally but is an independent charity with its own charity registration number and Board of Trustees. Through mediation, counselling, conciliation, consultation, and supervised child contact there are 6 key services that can ensure that families can repair complex relationship needs. Support is offered to a wide range of individuals and often takes in to account trauma and mental health issues due to family related conflict and detachment.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is being funded by the Postgraduate Researcher Hub, and therefore is only open to PGR students in the College of Social Sciences.

Student

 Opportunities

Hub

THE ROLE

The main aim of this project would be to write a series of case studies based on the work of Family Mediation West. This would involve interviewing sessional practice staff, service users, and studying case notes. Then, the final formulation of a written case study, demonstrating a journey from a situation of high conflict, through to a positive outcome for an individual or family. It is worth noting that all cases are highly sensitive, confidential and can demonstrate extreme levels of conflict. Due to the nature of the service, it could be common for some families to not directly engage with interviews and want their own story told as an example for readers. Over 60% of FMW's work is Court Ordered and this is another demonstration of why service users experience high conflict, and why sensitivity and confidentiality are key.

The aim therefore is to engage directly with service users ideally, but it could be that an intern would read a series of case files, and make reference to parties as 'mum' or 'dad' or the 'daughter' rather than using factual names. A final case study might feature a true journey of one family, or several different cases merged together that would show the initial conflict, range of services used, examples of lifestyle improvements and a positive outcome for the family.

FINN'S
PLACE

ABOUT US

The aim of Finn's Place is to provide opportunities for local residents to improve and enhance their wellbeing through a weekly programme of activities and occasional community events. Wellbeing is when we are living our lives to the full, no matter what circumstances we find ourselves in. At Finn's Place we support wellbeing in mind, body and spirit. We use the New Economics Foundation 'Five ways to wellbeing' as a guide to all that we offer at Finn's Place. Wellbeing is improved when we Connect with other, Keep learning, Be active, Take notice and Give back.

THE ROLE

We know Finn's Place makes a massive positive impact on the local community and beyond, but what is the difference that would really make the difference? What are we missing? Where can we improve? What assumptions are we making? As a wee charity we would love support creating a community lead theory of change to help us better understand what the communities we serve want and need to support their wellbeing.

As an intern you will engage in a community consultation - our partners, service users and local people to listen and learn what they want and need in order to experience wellbeing and a sense of belonging. You'll help clarify what their barriers are to this and what their views are on Finn's Place role in supporting this.

This work will inform our strategy review and most importantly ensure we're doing what's actually needed, not what we think is needed.

We are looking for a community minded, inclusion focused, critical thinking, curious and courageous person who is adept at building relationships and trust quickly with a range of people.

THE ROLE

To support capacity building and a skills gap within the existing team our project proposal focuses on digital marketing and website content. We envisage our intern developing a digital marketing plan which they could oversee and support the team to continue to implement beyond the lifespan of the internship. This would bring new skills to our team resulting in a project outcome that will have a positive impact long beyond the internship. Examples of this impact would be raising the profile of the organisation, supporting our monitoring and evaluation of services, showcasing lived experience and feedback from our service users providing information to our stakeholders, both current and future.

We're looking for our intern to raise the profile of our organisation as funders more than ever wish to see the social media and website profiles of charities. The social media profile, particularly the website is often the first point of engagement and effectively should act as an advertisement of our services highlighting the voices of previous and current service users. Given the nature of our respite services particularly our overnight care, prospective service users hearing positive feedback from families who have received the service would be an unbiased testament to the benefits of the service.

THE ROLE

We would like a student filmmaker and content creator to make a series of short videos for different platforms that we can use to demonstrate the vibrancy, fun and impact of our work.

We don't have the capacity in our team to create the informative, engaging video content we need to attract donations, hold fundraising campaigns, seek out new partnerships and encourage new people to come along to our events and activities. We are at a point where it is vital that we diversify our sources of income and are developing a strategy to bring in more money from private donations, bigger fundraising events and attracting earned income opportunities. A series of short videos, tailored to suit different social media platforms, websites, and in-person events will allow us to overcome these challenges and create much needed long-term sustainability in our organisation. It will enable us to fundraise more effectively, improve our online presence, better communicate with our partners, attract more opportunities for our participants, attract more 'paid for' work as part of our earned income strategy and create a sense of pride in our organisation and area.

Glasgow Building Preservation Trust

Youth Engagement Intern

ABOUT US

Glasgow Building Preservation Trust was established in 1982 as a charitable trust to rescue, repair, restore and rehabilitate significant, historic buildings at risk across the city. The retention of our historic built environment is pivotal to our sense of place and contributes to making Glasgow a beautiful and vibrant place to live, work and visit. In 1990, GBPT, with the Scottish Civic Trust, launched Glasgow's first Doors Open Day Festival (GDODF), which has gone from strength to strength and is now one of the highlights of Glasgow's events calendar.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is open to 3rd- to 5th-year undergraduates, PGT and PGR students from all colleges.

THE ROLE

The Youth Engagement Intern will work closely with the Festival Manager and festival team in developing meaningful connections with youth organisations across Glasgow, encouraging young people to explore and appreciate their local heritage. The intern will work closely with youth organisations and community groups to create interactive programs and resources tailored to young audiences.

They will also contribute to social media campaigns, digital resources, workshops materials and planning for guided tours designed to make heritage more accessible and appealing to young people. This activity aligns with our broader mission of ensuring inclusivity and fostering a deeper appreciation for Glasgow's historic environment among all generations.

Glasgow Centre for Inclusive Living

Research Intern

ABOUT US

GCIL is a disabled people-led organisation. We believe in the social model of disability; that barriers disable people, not impairments. This belief is central to everything that we do.

GCIL works to the principles of inclusive living; freedom of choice and control over one's life and life supports. We are a registered charity and a company limited by guarantee, set up in 1995.

Hub

THE ROLE

The charity is celebrating its 30-year anniversary and its founder, and some of the staff and Board of that time are still present in the charity or amongst its members, however we are concerned that we might lose the institutional memory of the origins of the independent living movement and our organisation in that. We would like to develop a publication that tells the history of the independent movement in Scotland, all that it has achieved, and the role of our charity in it to coincide with our anniversary.

The document when produced will be published and publicised at an event being held in the Scottish Parliament on 17 September 2025 and this will be attended by MSP's, Scottish Government Ministers, and we expect there to be an MSP sponsored debate to acknowledge our 30-year anniversary and our achievements.

We are working with an external public affairs agency to support this, and a strong political and media profile is expected. The publication will be a lasting legacy of our achievements and will be an authoritative publication of the history of not just us, but the wider movement to which we belong. We expect this to be of interest to future generations of social historians and policy makers as well as disabled people themselves.

THE ROLE

Building on the success of our Find a Solution intern last year the proposed internship opportunity is for a university student to undertake business data analysis for Glasgow Eco Trust. This internship aims to leverage data-driven insights to enhance our operational efficiency, strategic decision-making, and impact assessment.

Prior to the pandemic we migrated to Google Workspace however, we were still operating a mixture of hardcopy and digital processes. During the pandemic, out of necessity, we had to fully embrace cloud based solutions. As a result we have gathered a lot of data and have developed various systems and processes to analyse that data however we wish to make much better use of this data. Last year the intern developed a data portal which is a significant step forward for us.

Glasgow Eco Trust is looking to do further data analysis in order to work towards a CRM (customer relationship management) system and this project will include researching potential CRM solutions.

Glasgow North West Citizens Advice Bureau

Fundraising Intern

ABOUT US

The Glasgow North West Citizens Advice Bureau (GNWCAB) is a local, independent charity which provides free, impartial and confidential advice and information to people in the North West of Glasgow. We offer advice and support on a range of issues including but not limited to: finance, welfare, debt, housing, employment, energy and immigration. Our mission is to end poverty and inequality in our communities by ensuring people from all backgrounds are empowered through access to holistic advice and support that positively impacts their lives.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is open to 2nd- to 5th-year undergraduates and PGT students from the College of Social Sciences.

THE ROLE

Funding for this opportunity is being provided by the Glasgow Riverside Innovation District (GRID).

As a result of a recent policy change, we are now able to diversify our funding streams and consider individual giving, corporate partnerships and legacy/major giving as part of our fundraising strategy. The project will focus on individual giving specifically and how GNWCAB can be creative with it to maximise our unrestricted income. At GNWCAB, we are looking for an intern to support our Business Development Manager in creating and developing a new individual giving fundraising strategy. This project offers a unique opportunity for a student to make a direct impact to a charity that changes lives in the community. Prior to the policy change, GNWCAB relied on income from trusts and grant funding. The current trust and grant funding climate is becoming increasingly challenging with less funders available, funding pots significantly reducing and bids becoming extremely competitive. This has fueled the need to diversify our fundraising strategy. This internship provides a unique opportunity to shape our high level fundraising strategy and truly make a difference.

Glasgow Sculpture Studios

Library & Archive Intern

ABOUT US

Glasgow Sculpture Studios is the largest visual arts production centre in Scotland supporting sculptural and material practice in its widest sense. Established in 1988 by an enterprising group of graduates from the Glasgow School of Art, GSS was developed as an artist-led membership organisation in response to a gap in the visual arts ecology of Glasgow. While a number of spaces and initiatives proliferated to support the public presentation and sharing of artworks, there were no communal sculptural production facilities at that time to support the making of artworks.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is open to 4th- and 5th-year undergraduates, PGT and PGR students in the College of Arts and Humanities.

Student
 Opportunities
Hub

THE ROLE

This project is intended to invest time, thought and action into a currently underdeveloped resource at GSS. We have a sizeable library and archive collection which is not currently organised or catalogued in a meaningful or accessible way. The project will involve assessment, development, implementation and documentation of a new cataloguing system for our library and archive collections. We are confident that the work of this intern project will produce a crucial and valuable resource for everyone who visits GSS, which will allow us to deepen and extend the work we already deliver.

As we approach our 40th anniversary in 2028, the development and implementation of a cataloguing system will be a legacy project from which new research projects can develop, making use of our collections which will be newly accessible and documented. Additionally, we will be able to provide meaningful access to our collections for our members, our Learning & Engagement programme partners and participants in our local community of North Glasgow, and to wider users.

THE ROLE

We are looking for an intern to help us carry out a community engagement project. We don't want to be prescriptive and tell the local community what we think they need, we want them to tell us what they want and need at what will be THEIR community hub.

As it is a community engagement project, we are looking for someone who has good people skills and is a good communicator. The vast majority of the job will be reaching out to the local community and speaking with them, forming focus groups and working with them to get to the heart of what the community wants and needs.

The ideal candidate is someone with a social conscience who wants to make a difference and create their own legacy in terms of the work they produce.

The data and finding from the project will be used to provide evidence for the foundation to access future funding to allow the development of long term and sustainable programmes and activities to support the community.

THE ROLE

Lyra is entering a new period with an exciting business plan focused on widening reach and deepening impact with children and teenagers living in areas of significant multiple deprivation. As we turn 13 and become a teenager, the organisation needs to refocus its communications, tell its story better and shout about where it aims to get to in the coming years. With no dedicated communications function in the small core team, we are all proactive at playing our part in communicating the value of Lyra. However, we need help to refocus, make a stock change to our online communications, make better use of our archive of incredible photography and video from performances and projects and tell our story better. A short, sharp period of focus on a key communications project will make a huge difference to Lyra's positioning and, consequently, the public/political support we receive and funding we can generate to ensure all of our work can remain free for those who need it. We're looking for a confident communications and content creator with skills in video editing. We have key projects running in June and August where, working with teenagers, you can capture new content to tell Lyra's story. We also have a back catalogue of images and videos that illustrate our work and can be used to communicate our new three-year business plan.

Obesity Action Scotland

Policy Intern

ABOUT US

Obesity Action Scotland was established in 2015 to provide clinical leadership and independent advocacy on preventing and reducing overweight and obesity in Scotland. It is funded by a grant from the Scottish Government and hosted by the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Glasgow on behalf of the Academy of Medical Royal Colleges and Faculties.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is open to PGT and PGR students from the College of Arts & Humanities, College of Social Sciences, or College of MVLS.

THE ROLE

Building on work previously undertaken, this internship will involve carrying out analysis to produce a report of school meals in Scotland to establish how healthy school meals are and to what extent they meet school food nutritional standards. Free school meals are a critically important topic, with evidence showing that they benefit children and their families in a number of ways, including contributing to reducing poverty and supporting family budgets, improving attainment and behaviour, and creating a culture within the school and community. Universal free school meals are currently offered to all children in primaries 1-5, with free meals offered to children in primaries 6&7 who are in receipt of Scottish Child Payment. School meals can make an important contribution to addressing child poverty, which is a current focus of the Scottish Government.

The findings in this activity will be used to support Obesity Action Scotland's advocacy and policy asks for universal free school meals for all primary children in Scotland.

THE ROLE

Launched 20 years ago, Friends of Path was designed with two key goals:

1. Support not for profit Registered Social Landlords by providing specialist consultancy on eg, race equality policies, positive action initiatives, Black and minority ethnic leadership development;
2. Generate income to sustain Path Scotland's vital work through an annual subscription fee

With the housing sector recognising the need for greater equity, diversity, and inclusion, this is a crucial moment to redefine Path Scotland's role and collaborate closer and better with the sector. Importantly, it's a vital mechanism to help sustain the work of the organisation so we can work alongside many more racially minoritised and migrant communities, who, as research has shown repeatedly, continue to have some of the worst life outcomes.

Platform/Glasgow East Arts Company

Marketing & Research Intern

ABOUT US

Platform/Glasgow East Arts Company [GEAC] is an independent charity based at The Bridge, Easterhouse, which is in the east end of Glasgow. GEAC manages Platform – the arts centre at The Bridge. The Bridge is an award-winning building home to a variety of services including the Platform Café Bar, Platform programmes a varied mix of workshops, classes and live events in the arts centre and across North East Glasgow. We are a welcoming, active organisation and view culture and creativity as a bedrock of a healthy and inclusive society. Our work is rooted in our location and engages directly with our audiences.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is open to 2nd- to 5th-year undergraduates from either the College of Arts & Humanities or College of Social Sciences.

THE ROLE

Platform is looking to recruit a Marketing & Research intern to work on the promotion of Platform's creative / summer programme - and the evaluation of Platform's services within the local area.

The role would help promote Platform's summer programme and research/gather data to help reach more audiences, engage further with the local and wider community and gain a firmer insight into perceptions and the impact our services have. This would feed into Platform's strategic plan and help shape our outreach and programme going forward.

We host a varied programme of activity over the summer months including a children's holiday food programme offering free meals and creative activities to children and families in the local community and large scale family focused summer festivals.

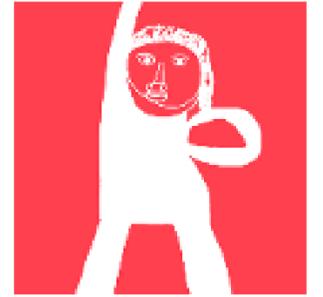

This all runs hand in hand with our core creative programme which takes place all year round.

THE ROLE

Funding for this opportunity is being provided by the Glasgow Riverside Innovation District (GRID).

This project is to install and integrate a new Customer Relationship Management (CRM) fundraising system for Refuweegee.

The challenge Refuweegee currently faces is our fundraising information is currently held on multiple spreadsheets. This is an inefficient way of working which increases the possibilities for human error.

A fully operational Fund raising CRM populated with donor information would be transformative for refugee. This would have a long lasting impact as we migrate information from multiple sources into one uniformed system.

Having a fully working fund raising CRM will enable Refuweegee to track giving; analyse trends; thank donors for milestones amounts; generate reports and accurately forecast income.

Scottish Civic Trust

Business Development Consultant Intern

ABOUT US

The Scottish Civic Trust is the national voice for Scotland's civic and heritage groups. Founded in 1967 to help people connect to their built heritage and countryside, preserve the uniqueness of their locality and appreciate how this connects to the wider unique character of Scotland, we successfully campaigned for the restoration of Edinburgh's New Town and can also claim credit for saving New Lanark and bringing Doors Open Days to the United Kingdom.

ELIGIBILITY

The role is only open to 4th- and 5th-year undergraduates, PGT and PGR students in the College of Social Sciences.

THE ROLE

The intern will undertake market research with our network of civic groups across Scotland and offer suggestions for how to develop our membership programme. The Trust services a network of over 150 local civic, heritage, and amenity societies across Scotland. We have refreshed our corporate strategy and are seeking a business development consultant intern to help us review our membership programme and make suggestions for its improvement.

Our membership programme is currently a very small part of our income generation, with most of our budget coming from grant-funded projects and rental income from the historic property we own and maintain, the 18th-century Tobacco Merchant's House.

THE ROLE

SCAN needs to ensure that we maintain our sector-leading offer, attract new membership and retain existing members in locations other than the central belt, where members often face unique challenges that comes with rural life. This is especially true of the Highlands region of Scotland as cultural workers deal with place-based challenges in terms of opportunities, distance, funding and travel between creative communities. Having begun a specific period of research and development in the Highlands region and expanding our team to include a Highland member development officer, we are working to understand the grass roots of contemporary art practitioners 'networks' there, and the specific ways in which they evolve and work in order to serve them better, with plans to later working on a system of mapping the region's networks.

To grow our knowledge of the area we need to identify which geographical areas we should begin focusing our support on, initially by focusing on uncovering the catalysts for artist led groupings forming in the Highlands. Initial data gathering will help us to understand where and how networks are coming together in the region today, what they are born out of and what purposes they serve, ensuring that in turn we provide a clear and distinct service for members.

Scottish Music Industry Association

Projects Assistant Intern

ABOUT US

The Scottish Music Industry Association (SMIA) exists to strengthen, empower and unite Scotland's music industry. Our Mission Create and nurture a diverse, accessible, and inclusive membership community that reflects the full spectrum of Scotland's music industry. Ensure that Scotland's music industry has an effective voice within government, parliament, and development organizations that facilitates understanding and awareness of key opportunities and challenges. Produce and support projects and programs to stimulate sustainability, domestic and international growth, development, and innovation.

ELIGIBILITY

Funding for this role is being provided by the College of Arts and Humanities, and therefore the role is open to 2nd- to 5th-year undergraduates, PGT and PGR students from this College only.

THE ROLE

In 2025, the Scottish Music Industry Association (SMIA) will deliver two flagship events that will support the development of Scotland's music industry. The intern will work across the planning, development and delivery of both of these key strategic projects in 2025. The challenge we have is that we are in the process of introducing a number of new initiatives to further enhance the SMIA's impact in sector development. As we look to scale up our services, projects and events, we require additional organisational capacity to support the delivery of our flagship projects to ensure effective delivery. With The SAY Award taking place in a new location, and the SMIA Summit transitioning to a physical event, whilst some aspects of project delivery will remain the same, additional work will be required to support delivery in 2025 whilst we're also introducing new initiatives. This is an exciting opportunity for a passionate individual to work on strategic national projects focused on developing Scotland's music industry; complimenting our existing team and gaining invaluable experience delivering high-profile events.

THE ROLE

The Scottish Women's Rights Centre is a collaboration between Rape Crisis Scotland, Just Right Scotland and the University of Strathclyde Law Clinic. The internship position would be employed by Rape Crisis Scotland.

As the funding landscape is becoming increasingly difficult, it is essential that we adapt and explore new avenues for fundraising, especially in relation to tech solutions for Gender Based Violence. The introduction of tech support for survivors of Gender Based Violence is relatively new in the Scottish context, and FollowIt App from the Scottish Women's Rights Centre is one of the first apps developed in Scotland to help survivors record instances of stalking.

Our organisation has historically had little capacity to dedicate to fundraising. As a result, we are aware that there are opportunities for fundraising which we are not taking advantage of. An internship would give a short term, focused support to our capacity in this area and allow the organisation to generate a stronger fundraising plan and strategy to ensure that FollowIt App can continue to run and provide support to survivors.

St Paul's Youth Forum

Volunteer Experience Intern

ABOUT US

We are a community-led and grassroots organisation dynamically responding to the challenges faced by our community. Blackhill is in the top 5% of the Scottish Index of Multiple Deprivation, and local people face multiple challenges including poverty, poor mental and physical health, low levels of educational attainment, generational unemployment, drug and alcohol abuse, social isolation, etc. We take direction from our community and work to empower members of the community by providing numerous opportunities including volunteering.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is open to 1st- to 4th-year undergraduates from any college.

THE ROLE

As an organisation we offer many volunteer opportunities within these different spheres and have many volunteers working with us each day of the week. Across the organisation we work with approximately 50 volunteers.

In order to be able to offer a better volunteering experience as we continue to grow as an organisation, we need to conduct some research around the experience of our current volunteers. The results of this research will shape our future approach to volunteering. Improving the volunteer experience at SPYF would have hugely positive benefits for our organisation. Retaining volunteers would enable us to build mutually beneficial long-term relationships with our community, and would also reduce the amount of staff time taken up with recruiting and training volunteers. We would like to be able to offer well-defined volunteer roles including onboarding and exit processes, progression and development to increase volunteer satisfaction. As an organisation we would also benefit from improving our ongoing volunteer feedback processes in order to capture our successes and demonstrate the impact that offering these opportunities has on our community.

Stepping Stones for Families

Digital Creative Assistant Intern

ABOUT US

For over 35 years, Stepping Stones for Families has been helping families across West and South West Scotland to mitigate the effects of poverty, isolation and exclusion.

With our services – Family Support and Flexible Childcare – we equip families with the tools they need to manage life day-to-day. Once these foundations are in place, many of those we work alongside discover they possess the resources, resilience and confidence to overcome adversity and sustain their own positive change.

ELIGIBILITY

This role is open to 2nd- to 5th-year undergraduates and PGT students from the College of Arts and Humanities.

THE ROLE

A challenge for us is creating a strategy for marketing and promotion which tells the story of the positive impact our work has on families affected by poverty and inequality. We are looking to appoint an intern who is creative, ambitious and able to design content that will promote our work to a wide range of stakeholders through a variety of platforms. We're looking for someone who is passionate about helping us achieve this with the skills and enthusiasm to work collaboratively.

Main duties & responsibilities:

1. To work on the creation and design of digital content to tell compelling stories about Stepping Stones for Families, this would include for example: editing photos, creating illustrations, simple animations, video/audio , graphics for the web and social media, interactive design
2. To monitor and record analytics and use this data to inform future content
